Sebastian Herkner has designed Seku, a lounge chair that joins the range of outdoor products proposed in Moroso's M'Afrique collection. In the western-African language Wolof, "Seku" means 'parrot', and the bright colours of this bird were the inspiration for this comfortable outdoor chair: the shell of the seat appears to float until it slides into the structure. The covering in hand-woven polyethylene strands, with its flashy colours, together with the special ruched shape of the end of the back and armrests give this piece the look of a tropical animal. The extra cushion, available on request, adds comfort and softness.
