KATE FRIEND
BOTANICAL PORTRAITS

Photographer Kate Friend spent the Spring and Summer of 2017 touring a selection of England's greatest gardens, gathering plant subjects for photographic study. The result is this series of Botanical Portraits.

In each photograph, a stem is isolated from its growing environment and photographed in a studio setting, inviting the viewer to focus on form and colour. With a nod both to the Japanese rikka (standing flowers) tradition and to Gertrude Jekyll's still life photography of the 19th century, the aesthetics focus as much on what is left out as on the little that is allowed in. Vases and vessels are of central importance to the final result.

The eclectic nature of Kate Friend's final selection of plants reflects England's multicultural botanical heritage.

Series available in two sizes. Images in this series are shot entirely on 6x7 medium format film. All works are archival giclée prints, produced in signed limited editions of 20. All sizes refer to unframed works. Framed works are fixed mounted, museum-grade framing hand finished in Tasmanian Oak in either natural, charcoal, black or white.
